It’s your trip

Another advantage of a small ship is flexibility. The captain can change course when word of whale sightings comes in over the radio, or slow to linger if bears are foraging on the beach. If everyone agrees to spend extra time hiking that’s what you can do. It’s your trip.

A note about Small ship cruising

One of the primary advantages of seeing the Inside Passage on the Safari Explorer is the remarkable degree of flexibility built into the itinerary. Except for a stop at Bartlett Cove in Glacier Bay Natural Park (and, of course, arrival and departure days), there is no need to be at any particular place at a fixed time during this program. This means that you will have the opportunity to watch while whales breach and play, to kayak near rafts of inquisitive sea otters, to float on the swell as icebergs crash into the sea. In other words, you will have the luxury of time to appreciate the wild beauty of the Inside Passage, and the freedom to just be.
Alaska’s Inside Passage

Alaska is a destination of superlatives – most rugged, most remote, most majestic. For centuries, travelers have made difficult, dangerous journeys to explore - and to exploit - this harsh and beautiful land. The inexorable forces of nature are on full display here - mountains eroded by the crushing force of massive glaciers, icebergs crowding cold aquamarine seas, the reproductive cycles of plants and animals compressed into the scant, warm weeks of an arctic summer.

Our 8-Day Itinerary

Day 1: Arrive Juneau / Embarkation
After your arrival in Juneau, transfer from the airport to the Safari Explorer for a late afternoon embarkation. Your crew greets you with champagne and smiles, and we’ll cruise to a secluded wilderness anchorage this evening. (D)

Day 2: Icy Strait and Point Adolphus
Search for the tell-tale blow of the humpback whale as we cross Icy Strait and round Point Adolphus. After anchoring for the evening in a remote bay, we’ll lower the kayaks and skiffs and look for wildlife such as sea otters and bears. (B,L,D)

Days 3–4: Glacier Bay National Park
During our two days in the park, we’ll cruise nearly 60 miles to Grand Pacific and Margerie Glaciers, which frequently calve huge icebergs into the bay. Conditions permitting, we’ll lower the inflatables and weave among the icebergs that have fallen from the face of the glaciers. Enjoy evenings at anchor in hidden coves, and mornings kayaking or hiking in the quiet of this majestic wilderness. Here in the bay there are puffins, sea lions, mountain goats, bears, moose, eagles, and some of the most spectacular scenery on Earth. (B,L,D)

Day 5: Frederick Sound
Today we’ll cruise around Admiralty Island to prime humpback-viewing waters in Frederick Sound. We’ll take time to skiff and kayak in Saginaw Bay, and cruise up close to a sea lion colony at the Brothers Islands. Tonight we’ll anchor in a quiet, picturesque bay. (B,L,D)

Day 6: Admiralty Island
Explore the cool, forested shoreline of Gambier Bay, a large, island-speckled body of water on the south coast of Admiralty Island National Monument. Never logged, the thick evergreen forest crowds right down to the gravel beaches. Here it may be possible to see some of the famous Admiralty Island grizzly bears, known to patrol the beaches at low tide, seeking a shellfish supper. Once again under way, we’ll watch for humpback whales before possibly anchoring at Wood Spit for more exploration by kayak and skiff. (B,L,D)

Day 7: Ford’s Terror & Endicott Arm

Deep glacial fjords are on display today in an area widely acclaimed as the most beautiful in all of Alaska. Snow gleams on high mountaintops and sparkling waterfalls tumble down cliffs as bears amble on the shoreline and mountain goats cling to impossibly precarious perches. If the tide is right, enjoy a skiff ride at Ford’s Terror, named after an early mariner who was somewhat taken aback when a waterfall appeared at the turn of the tide where none had been visible before. We’ll anchor overnight in a quiet harbor to enjoy the Captain’s Farewell Dinner in a lovely and peaceful setting. (B,L,D)

Day 8: Return to Juneau / Disembarkation

Arrive back in Juneau in the early morning, and transfer to the airport for return flights home. (B)
Live and learn

Hear lectures and be accompanied throughout the journey by naturalist Greg Greer, who will speak about the ecosystem and flora and fauna of this primal wilderness.

See where they roam

In the Inside Passage you may see some of the most charismatic mammals of North America including grizzly bears, moose, caribou, Dall sheep, seals, sea otters, orcas and humpback whales.

His wide ranging expertise in the natural world comes from his life-long passion for, and understanding of, the creatures with which we share this planet. A talented and enthusiastic all-around naturalist, his past travels have taken him from Antarctica to Zambia and many other destinations in between, including the Amazon, the Galapagos Islands, the Florida Everglades and Alaska.
